Supporting Life-Saving Care in Our Community

USA Health Providence Hospital is now home to an ECMO (Extracorporeal Membrane Oxygenation) program — a game-changing advancement in life support technology. ECMO provides critical, life-saving support for patients facing severe heart and lung failure, giving them a second chance when all other options have been exhausted.

What is ECMO?

ECMO is an advanced form of life support for patients whose hearts and lungs can't function on their own. Acting like an artificial heart and lung, it gives the body time to heal, recover, or prepare for a transplant. Doctors turn to ECMO when no other treatment is working.

Who might need it?

Patients with severe conditions such as a heart attack, trauma, respiratory disease, sepsis or flu may need ECMO to survive.

Why does it matter here?

Previously, patients often had to be transferred far distances for this specialized care. Now families can stay close to home while receiving the highest level of treatment.

How can I help?

You can play a vital role by supporting the Antiques & Garden Show — a celebration of antiques, design, and inspired living. This premier event raises essential funds to sustain the ECMO program at Providence Hospital. By sponsoring, you are directly contributing to critical care in our region.
